DETAILED ACTION

1. Claims 1-21 have been examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 USC 103(a) as unpatentable over McCauley(US Pat. No: 6,067,533) in view of Rosenwald(US Pat. No: 6,038,550) and further in view of Stout(US Pat. No: 5,878,404).

4. As per claims 1-21 McCauley teaches a method for generating a loan model for assessing a borrower's ability to pay(Abstract)(Fig 2). Rosenwald teaches a method for calculating interest on loans(Abstract)(Fig 7) as well as a method of managing interest on a developing series of financial transactions(col 1 line 61-col 2 line 25). Stout teaches a system for analyzing the amortization of a loan(Abstract) including time payments and residual balances on the loan which could be used to determine loan delinquencies(col 2 line 51-col 3 line 22) based upon whether such loan balances increase or decrease(col 4 line 44-65)(Fig 3).It would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to combine McCauley in view of Rosenwald and further in view of Stout to teach the above. The motivation to combine McCauley in view of Rosenwald is to teach a method for determining the interest on a series of financial transactions as enunciated by Rosenwald(col 1 lines 50-60) which may be modified to apply to interest on a sequence of loans at various stages of delinquency or timeliness. Also, the motivation to combine McCauley in view of Rosenwald and further in view of Stout is to teach a method for loan amortization as enunciated by Stout(col 2 lines 51-55) which may be modified to manage delinquent loans.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

5. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claims 1-21 are further rejected under 112(2nd) for failing to point out and precisely and distinctly claim what applicant regards is the invention.

Conclusion

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE NON-FINAL.
